The User-friendly Classroom: Introduce Yourself

Instructions: Based on the advice in The First Day video and the examples in the Introductions video, plan your own 1-3 minute introduction for the first day of a class that you will be teaching (or one you would like to teach).

Be sure to include the following elements:

- Welcome students to the class.
- Introduce yourself.
- Say something about yourself as it relates to the class.
- Let students know they can ask you questions.
- Give your contact information.

Use this space for notes.

When you are ready, record yourself giving this introduction using a phone or other device and follow the instructions in the Evaluate Yourself assignment. (If you are in a class, you can also ask your instructor and classmates to give you immediate feedback.)

GSL | MIT Global Studies and Languages

RES.21G-001 The User-friendly Classroom
Fall 2020